

The 4th World Conference of Women's Shelters

Impact · Solidarity : Shelters at the Forefront of Ending Violence against Women
November 5-8, 2019, Kaohsiung, Taiwan

Violence against women and girls is a global violation of human rights. One in three women experience physical and/or sexual violence, usually by an intimate partner.

Working on the frontline to protect survivors, shelters not only provide safety, but are critical partners in the effort to eliminate violence against women and girls. Yet shelters often lack necessary support to carry out this role.

The 4th World Conference of Women's Shelters (4WCWS) will be an opportunity to join over 1,500 advocates, service providers, government representatives, funders, corporate partners, researchers, academics and students from 120 countries to network and share ideas on how to strengthen women's shelters and end violence against women.
